Grand Rapids Public Library Post Card Collection

(GRPL Postcard Collection)

Collection # 078

March 2009 Version

Abstract

The Grand Rapids Public Library Postcard Collection is the Library's generic postcard collection, hosting a variety of small accessions. The collection has quadrupled in size due to the focused processing of this popular media over the last 6 years. Item level descriptions are now being added which includes some of the key ID information usually given on the card. Contained here are primarily Grand Rapids views, particularly of Grand Rapids streets, buildings, bridges, numerous images of John Ball Park, for example. Views of other Michigan towns and resort communities, particularly those from Macatawa and Ottawa Beach from the early 20th century, may also be found in the collection. Several different postcard distributors are represented, as well as various correspondents. Also included are some advertising cards or miscellaneous historical images. A few jumbo & panoramic cards are included with most of the collection of standard postcard size. Laser research or preservation copies of early postcard images are beginning to be attached to this collection, or may be found in the separate GRPL Laser Image Collection. This collection is updated several times per year, as new items are received.

Collection #: 078

Accession #: 00.000, 86.083, 86.514, 86.515. Other accession numbers recorded with the item. P2006.042.

Donors: Various and numerous. Donor information for many of the items originally processed for the collection is unknown.

Span dates: ca. 1900-

Processor: Original processing by Richard H. Harms, June 1988.

Extensive additions and revisions, R. Mayne, and various volunteers & interns. 1998-
Size: 1.5 linear ft.

Processing Note

The collection is at least five times larger than it was in 1999/2000. The quality and amount of description in the entries is uneven, and over time all descriptions are expected to become more complete.

The basic descriptive level is by folder, for each new subject. However, some subjects, such as John Ball Park, require several sub-folders, due to the large number of items. For collection development and to assist users in understanding the difference between one card and another within the folder, full descriptive information is desired, as time allows.

Box no.	Folder No.	Folder Description (No. of items in the folder & date of last inventory)
		<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 1. Item number for first image.● 2-4. If more than one copy of same image. Or● 2. Signed● 3. Unique info.● 4. Unique info.

See the “Bridge Street Bridge” folder for an example of full entries.

As with departmental photos, it is often desirable to assign four location elements:
Collection / Box / Folder / item number within the folder

The fourth element provides a count of the total number of cards assigned to a particular folder, and should match the total count written on the front of the folder.

The word processing numbering function is sometimes used in the description, and should match the item number assigned to the card, for that particular folder.

History

For a more complete history of postcards, the reader is referred to the many books and Internet sites available on this topic. In particular, the books by Thomas Dilley, listed in the “Related Collections” area above, provide historical information on postcards in general, and Grand Rapids cards in particular.

Smithsonian. Chronology of the Picture Postcard.

<http://siarchives.si.edu/history/exhibits/postcard/chronology.htm>

When postcards originally came into use, there was a clearer distinction between the mailer or postal card and the souvenir/advertising/picture card. The U.S. Postal Service and postal regulations were and still are a key factor in the success of the use postcards. As postal regulations changed, and as graphic capabilities developed, the mailer card of choice became the illustrated card, for whatever purpose, rather than just the plain cards for just a message and address.

In the beginning, the postal cards with no image were the only ones available for mailing. The use of the message postcard dates in Europe from around 1869, followed shortly thereafter in the U.S. in 1871. John P. Carlton of Philadelphia in 1861, is credited in some sources as obtaining the first copyright for a private postal card, selling the rights later to H.L. Lipman, although the U.S. Postal laws may not have allowed these private cards to be mailed until later.

The souvenir or advertising picture postcard is documented in some sources as first printed in England in 1872, with a multicolor card available in Europe in 1889. Cards of pictures of the Eiffel Tower were in use by 1889/1890. In the U.S., some sources reference the 1873 card from the Inter-State Industrial Exposition of Chicago, as the first illustrated advertising card, though it was probably not available for direct mailing.

From 1898 to 1907 were the early eras of postcard development. Images could be illustrated, or based on a real photographic image. European image reproduction technology lead the way during this period, with the card then often distributed by a local news vendor or printer. The cards during this time usually had undivided backs. This means that there was the picture on one side, and the address space on the other side, with no dedicated place for the private message. If a message was added, it might be written on top of the image, for example or anywhere on the card. The Golden Age of postcards with the divided backs ranged from 1907 to 1915, and beginning in 1915 a white board began to be used.

Sometimes on the early cards the same image is found reproduced in several ways, as a black and white or color cards. The color cards may be colorized photos rather than actual color photos, with different versions of the same image produced using variants in the shade and tones of color used, and in the supplier as well, from one example to another. In some cases, an actual historical photograph in the GRPL collection, upon which the card is based can be found and matched to the images, with dedicated searching. In other cases, the postcard provides the only unique version of the images, in printed form, rather than an actual photographic format.

In the 21st Century, new services and cards allow the user to add their image and their advertising digitally, to create their own unique card. For a Moving card, for example, the user might provide a picture of their new home, along with the new address notification on their mailer card. Some of these new types of mailer cards are found in the GRPL Archives, for example, in Coll. 254, as mailer cards by local realtor advertising a house for sale.

Coll. 078, the GRPL Postcard Collection documents the souvenir or picture postcards with primarily Grand Rapids images, but reflecting the general history of postcard development as it occurred throughout the country. Many of the items in this collection have the original notes and an address on them from their actual use. The cards are often dated from the U.S. Postal mark printed on the card. The messages have their own value in historical collections, but the heavy usage of the cards is usually for the historical images printed on the cards. The card served as an inexpensive way for the original user to send their message, and the selection of the image on the card was often the personal choice of the user. Other cards in the collection have just been collected for their images, either casually by individuals perhaps on a vacation trip, or by Deltiologists, those serious collectors who work at building comprehensive collections, including those with items of unique value. Now in the GRPL Archives, these sometimes worn, but generally unused cards, document the visual history of Grand Rapids.

Dates printed on the cards in this collection may be the dates of the objects depicted, rather than the date of the cards production. The postal date is a circa date, and the card could be first released one to several years earlier.

Using the cards in this collection, accumulated for the Grand Rapids Public Library, Ryerson Library Building, for example, may be one way to see representative cards from historical postcard production eras parallel to the historical eras of Grand Rapids own history. The Ryerson Library Building was originally built in 1904, funded by Martin Ryerson of Chicago. A Detroit Photographic Co. card in the collection has a message dated Dec. 29, 1904 and postal stamp date in January of 1905. The back of the card is damaged, but appears to be an undivided back postcard. There are also four other early but undated views which also have undivided backs. Of these four, one is a photo card printed in Germany, called a Raphael Truck & Sons postcard (British), but distributed locally by the Boston store. Another is Leipzig Dresden photo illustration published from a Rochester New York news company. The other two are credited to Grand Rapids companies. The local Dickinson Brothers card has Art Nouveau type art work on the mailing side, and an artistic background border for the two black and white photos included on the picture side. The W. Millard Palmer Co. local card seems to show a more rural setting and an early out building not seen in most of the other early views of building. If accurate it could actually be the earliest postcard view available of the building, except that there is also a divided back cards of the same image, but it could have been reprinted later. A divided backed Rotography Co., card, postmarked 1909 is also found, along with several other mostly photo based illustrations from the ca. 1909-1915. Still later reproductions in the Ryerson Buildings samples document the different color reproduction processed in use.

Series

Series I. Information about Grand Rapids & Kent County postcards.

Included in this collection is information about or from the Grand Rapids area postcard club, the Western Michigan Postcard Club.

Also included here are books and articles about area postcards.

Series II. Special formats

Postcards have been published in various formats of the physical card, with most fitting within the large sized shoeboxes used to house this collection.

Jumbo postcards are found listed by the image identification within Series III, though they are housed in Box 6 due to the larger physical format.

Postcards images have occasionally been published by the common postcard companies listed here in a unique physical form other than the card. For those few cases where examples of the unique formats exist in the collection, they are documented in the separate series. One example of a special format found in the collection are postcard images commonly used by Heybour on cards produced for use of sticky back postal stamps. There are not official U.S. Postal Service stamps, but decorative stamps which illustrate 16 different Grand Rapids views, mostly buildings.

Series III. Postcards or Copies of Postcards

The bulk of the collection is described in this series, in alphabetical order by the descriptive information given on the card. Where another later or earlier name is know for the building or view, a cross reference is given under that name. For example, cards published the "Pantlind Hotel" will by under "Pantlind", while later buildings on the same site, such as the "Amway Grand", will by listed under "Amway". A see or see also not to the earlier or later building is usually given.

Researchers can also search the list for their subject listed under alternative heading by using a key word search within the document. Thus, postcards which include multiple views and/or may be described under a general heading, my have the specific heading listed elsewhere under that general heading.

Pantlind Hotel / Hotel Pantlind (17 + 14 = 31 under both names)

3 33

As "Pantlind Hotel" (17, including dups.)

1. B/w real image with utility poles. Old National Bank in lower portion of building, corner view, with people and horse drawing wagon. 00. [5517].1 Added 5/12/2008 Card has undivided back addressed to Miss Lucille Harkins(?) Oct. 8, 1906.
2. 139. View similar, not same, as above. Postal mark Sept. 25, 1912. Message to Mrs. P. Beije.
3. 139. dupl unused.
4. 8A-H2608 Shaw News Agency. Curteich, Chicago. Unused. Later corner view seems more stylized than real. May be a bird's eye McKay, but does not seem possible to get the bank clock tower building in the same view as what appears to be the Civic Auditorium on the other side of the Pantlind. The illustrators seem to have pushed the building with the clock tower behind the Pantlind, and the layout and view of the streets, which might closest come from across the street on Pearl & N. Monroe, are distorted. Possibly the Civic Auditorium behind the Pantlind at right.
5. 8A-H2608 Dup. Postal date 1946. Message to Mr. & Mrs. J.C. King.
6. 320 Heyboer. Pantlind at Campau Square. Similar to above, but with more realistic representation of buildings on left and right of the Pantlind. Sept. 30, 1936 Postal date. Message to Miss M.B. Jones. 2001.075 12/6/2001
7. 320 Heyboer. Dup. of image above, but without the "320" number. June 26, 1936 postal date. Message to Mrs. & Mrs. F. Fisher.
8. 118380. "Entire City Block of Hospitality" Curt Teich. Truer perspective and view of buildings, with Old National Bank in Pantlind on ? State Bank in clock tower building across Pearl St. autos and cluster globe lighting. June 4, 1920(?) postal date. Addressed to Virginia Ost?
9. 5A-H1480. Art-Colortone. "Entire City Block of Hospitality. Has decorative board, ca. 1930's Art Deco figures/door men(?) on either side. Untrue perspective as in 4. above.
10. New Pantlind Hotel, 1915, with buildings on either side whited over. Busy square with people, street cars and early autos. Nov. 21, 1914? postal date. Message to Miss Elsie Miller. P2001.145
11. D-102. Image is similar to 4 & 9 above, but appears to be a real photo. Decorative border to left and right of image. (2) Wayne Paper Box & Printing Copr., Fort Wayne. P2001.085 Unused
