Finding Aid for the

Pere Marquette Railroad Co. Collection

Collection # 037

January 2008 Version

Abstract

This collection documents the operations and business affairs of the Pere Marquette Railroad from creation in 1899 through 1946. It contains various company publications including annual reports, advertising brochures, financial documents, and miscellaneous items. Also included are Pere Marquette Magazine and Pere Marquette Service, two of the company's publications used to improve ridership, usage, and promote the company's image. The Pere Marquette used the Union Station in Grand Rapids. In 1947, the Pere Marquette was merged into the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

History

The Pere Marquette Railroad Co. was created November 1, 1899 by combining the Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad Co., the Chicago & West Michigan Railway Company and the Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western Railroad Company. Each of these roads was itself a result of combining earlier lines. In 1900 the Muskegon Lake Railroad was added, and in 1903 eight more, smaller Michigan lines were purchased. The resulting line operated across much of Michigan's lower peninsula, also extending into Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and from Detroit through Ontario, Canada to Buffalo, New York where connection was made with many of the Eastern roads. The Pere Marquette's headquarters was at Detroit.

In 1912 the line went into receivership, was reorganized and renamed the Pere Marquette Railroad. This lasted until April 1917, when the railroad again went into receivership and following a second reorganization emerged as the Pere Marquette Railway Company. It was absorbed by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad in 1947.

Scope and Content

The collection documents the operations and business affairs of the Pere Marquette from 1900-1946. Includes various company publications consisting primarily of annual reports from 1900-1929 and 1946, and tourist brochures for the online northern Michigan resorts, plus hunting and fishing grounds. The annual reports include information on equipment, motive power, and construction, as well as accounting and balance statements. Includes financial testimony and records from 1913, regarding the events surrounding the railroad's 1912 receivership. Also contains a 1916 menu highlighting Grand Rapids, in the miscellaneous section, as well as other items.

Pere Marquette Magazine and Pere Marquette Service were the publications of the Public Relations Department to promote railway policies and interest and reestablish credibility following the second financial reorganization. Service was an in-house publication, directed toward employees and related industries. Both journals reflect the railway in Michigan and the U.S.
