World Affairs Council of Grand Rapids /
World Affairs Council of Western Michigan Records

Collection # 004

November 2007 version

Abstract

The World Affairs Council Records document the activities of the World Affairs Council of Grand Rapids (later renamed the World Affairs Council of Western Michigan) from its inception in 1949, and currently including some files through 1986. This non-profit, non-partisan organization was designed to educate the local citizenry concerning world issues, as well as stimulate interest and understanding of world affairs. Activities documented include guest speakers and programs, Michigan International Week events, World Trade Week events, and community ambassadors. Included are correspondence, newsletters, meeting minutes, biographies, photos, new releases, fliers & posters, and subject files. The bulk of the material dates to after the mid-1960s. Many of the speakers come from outside of the Michigan community, making this a collection with an international scope, seated in the Western Michigan community. Revisions to the collection are in progress, as time allows, to accommodate new holdings from the 1988 accession.

History

This collection documents the World Affairs Council of Western Michigan with sources from the creation of the organization till 1986. On November 1, 1949, the World Affairs Council (formerly known as the Grand Rapids Council on World Affairs) held the first meeting of the Board of Directors. Founding members, including Mr. A. H. Kollenberg (President) and Mr. Edgar Orr (Executive Vice-President), in their capacity as community leaders, sought to help educate the Grand Rapids population on the important international policy issues that directly affected the United States' foreign policy. Before and during World War II, the United States practiced isolationism which resulted in an American public who lacked true knowledge of global events. By creating an organization whose goal it was to bring information to the people, the founders of the World Affairs Council believed that they would be helping to inform the American citizens, at the local level, of political, economic, and social issues that faced the world. The original By-Laws read, "The Grand Rapids Council on World Affairs shall be a non-profit, educational organization to stimulate interest in and better the understanding of world affairs." This continues to be their mission today. As an "independent, voluntary, non-profit, non-partisan educational organization," the council brings in experts and engages the community in dialogs about international issues (WAC Membership form, ca. 1983). The guest lectures, luncheons, newsletter publications, Great Decisions program, travel opportunities, debates, and other forms of community engagement provide a means to the goal of education. In the past, important movers-and-shakers of the United States government, such as William Porter (U.S. Ambassador to Canada), spoke at World Affairs Council events. In addition, important people in the international arena have also participated, including lectures given by Nikolai Setounski (Chief of the Soviet Union's TASS News Agency, New York) and M. Peter McPherson (Chairman of OPIC). It is not solely an international venture, but one that looks closely at the community at hand by hosting debates and lectures from people in the community – Professor Robert DeVries for example. The Board of Directors governs the Council and it is administered by officers and a small voluntary staff. Over the years this organization has gone through many different stages of development, but they continue to provide lectures and other programs which further the global awareness of the people of Western Michigan.

Scope and Content

The focus of the World Affairs Council Records Collection is unique in that it brings the international community to the local people of Western Michigan. Though the majority of the documents deal with politics, economics, and policies from the entire world, they do so by bringing these issues to the locals. This collection is important to the scope of the Grand Rapids History and Special Collections Center because it involves the local community in issues of international concern and provides documentation on how the area has reacted to these issues.

The World Affairs Council Records Collection is strong in specific information on lectures and programs. There are many people of international importance who have spoken in Grand Rapids and the folders on these issues have a wide variety of documentation, from correspondences and fliers to biographies and photographs. The earliest records (1949-1960s) lack this type of specific data, as we only have general organizational documents from this time period. Program subject files make up the bulk of the collection, specifically those that address the different programs the WAC hosted. The photographs, though plentiful, are limited in subject matter. They are mostly restricted to formal stills used in publicity, and there are very few which offer a look at local people interacting with the guests. In addition, the bulk of the guest speakers come from Washington D.C. and Europe. This Western focus does limit the information geographically; however, there are resources from Russia, South Africa, and Japan, to name a few, that show a grander picture of the world.

Processing Notes

June/July 2000 Addendum & reorganization

A new biographical file has been created. In some cases duplicate biographies are still found in other files.

Most photos are now housed in a separate box within the collection. Some photos may still be undiscovered within the reference files. A photo index, to date, is provided at the end of the finding aid.

February/March/April 2006 Addendum and Reorganization

The material from the acquisition have been interdependency's into the corresponding series and all materials have been cataloged.

Series

Series I. ORGANIZATION DOCUMENTS

This series was previously called the Board of Directors Minutes, but was changed in 2004 to reflect the broader representation of documents included. Included are by-laws, financial statements, correspondence and programs that directly affect the ability of the organization to effectively do business. These items were removed in 2006 and placed in the History and General Information sub series.

Sub series A. History & General Information.

This sub series was created to reflect the overarching information regarding the WAC itself and all of the day-to-day administrative and coordinating functions of this active institution. Currently there is only one item indexed under this heading which is a membership form ca. 1983. This category will be expand as the research and general information regarding the WAC itself is further developed.

Sub series B. BOARD OF DIRECTORS MINUTES, 1949-84.

This sub series was created for specifically dealing with the minutes of the Board of Directors and currently has records ranging from 1949-1984. As these documents reflect the inner workings and specific information on different events in the WAC, placing them in a separate sub series aids in ease of access. There are additional documents within this sub series that have not been removed in order to preserve the continuity of the information. There are also supporting documents used at the Board meetings purposely filed with the minutes: letters to the Board members, Nomination Committee recommendations, reports to the council by other committee members, and financial statements given for the Board's approval.

Series II. NEWSLETTERS, 1954-82.

Included in the collection are local newsletters, as well as scatter representations of newsletters from related national organizations. The local newsletters include information on upcoming programs, election of officers, meeting dates, etc. The titles vary over time, including: World Affairs Bulletin, World Affairs Council Calendar, Grand Rapids World Affairs Council News Brief, and World Affairs Council of Western Michigan Newsletters. Arranged chronologically. Fuller inventory information needed.

Series III. SUBJECT FILE, ca.1968-84.

Subseries A. Program Subject Files.

Throughout the course of its history, the WAC has hosted many different speakers, debates, and other programs in the Grand Rapids area. This subseries was created in 2006 to house all of the documents that address the programs that were held. These documents are listed alphabetically by speaker or title of program/event.

Subseries B. Miscellaneous Subject Files.

This series was created to organize the various miscellaneous files that did not fall under any of the previous series headings or was not connected by a higher organizing concept. Items in this file consist are varied in nature and type. Most are correspondences, brochures, notes, receipts and newspaper clippings related to conference and lectures sponsored by the Council. The topics are organized by subject and filed alphabetically by speaker or title.

Series IV. SCRAPBOOKS, 1949-1982.

Seven scrapbooks of original newspaper clippings are included in the collection, mainly from The Grand Rapids Press but also some from The Grand Rapids Herald. Each scrapbook is loosely arranged by topic. There are two pertaining to the Community Ambassador program, two with articles regarding various programs, one devoted to lectures, one filled with miscellaneous clippings, and one that focuses on UNICEF. No indexing of the clippings is currently available. See also World Affairs Council clippings in Coll. 297, the GR Press Collection as well as the subject files for clippings regarding a specific lecture or program.

Series V. BIOGRAPHIES, 1970's-1980's.

A separate biographies file was created in July 2000, providing more direct access to items on individuals that were hidden in subject files. Not all biographies are separated and included in this section, but may be found filed as a part of another series, such as "Great Decisions" series. Biographies in the Biographies series are arranged first by "Local" and then by "Other" speakers. Sometimes the distinction is unclear. Within these sub series the arrangement is alphabetical.

Series VI. PHOTOGRAPHS, 1970's-1980's.

A separate photography file was created in July 2000 and completed in March of 2006 in which all of the photographs from the WAC collection have been placed. This file provides a dual purpose: (1) to preserve the delicate photographs and (2) to allow for easier access to the photographs themselves. All of the photographs can be found in Box 13 by referring to the alphabetically arranged contents list below or the index located in Box 13 Folder 1. All of the photographs which were taken by Robinson Studio are marked with an asterisk (*).

There are many different types of photographic documentation housed in this collection. The size and generic label of the photograph is noted in the content list and in the index. In general there are many different types of photos included. The most prevalent is the formal still photos, also known as head shots. When each speaker came to speak before the WAC, they were asked to submit a photograph to be used in the advertisement for his/her lecture. In some, but not all, situations the WAC retained the photograph and it has become a part of this collection. In addition there are photographs taken at the event itself. When able, each person in the photograph has been identified and noted; however, this was not possible in the entire collection. Besides these two types, there are also publicity shots, exhibit documentation, and miscellaneous other subjects included in this series.

Series VII. GREAT DECISIONS SERIES.

This series was created to house information regarding the Great Decision program hosted by the World Affairs Council. The Great Decisions program was founded in 1954 by the Foreign Policy Association of New York City. The authors of this series seek to engage United States citizens in learning about issues which affect their country. Great Decisions offer participants the opportunity to discuss a multitude of international policy issues and how they affect United States' foreign policy in turn. Each year many different current events related organizations use the information produced by the Foreign Policy Association to organize lectures, panel discussions, debates, television programs, and other events that promote global awareness in the specific community. For more information see www.fpa.org.

It is unclear exactly when the World Affairs Council joined this program. The earliest references to the Great Decisions series occurs in the Executive Board Minutes dating from the Fall of 1960. The collection itself includes documentation from as early as 1981.

All information regarding the Great Decisions has been separated in order to create its own series. This facilitates easy access to the specific documentation. The files are organized by year, then alphabetically within each year.

Series VIII. INTERNATIONAL WEEK FILE, 1975-78.

Records related to week-long events sponsored by the Council which focused on a single country, theme or world area are located in this series. The WAC worked hard to involve many local institutions and organizations such as the Public Museum, Public Library, Art Museum, Jaycees, Rotary, various businesses and schools which can be seen in this file. The topics were broad ranging and included arts, cooking, international trade, expert lectures, travel, etc. Records include correspondence, brochures, press releases, newspaper clippings, program outlines and photographs. Arranged chronologically by year and then alphabetically by subject.

Series IX. INTERNATIONAL MONTH.

A separate section was created in March 2006 to house files pertaining directly to the World Affairs Council's International Month. It is unclear from the research done thus far when exactly this program began; however, there are records available in this collection from 1980, 1981, and 1982. This program is an off shoot of the International Week and embraces many of the same goals and dimensions. International Month is a month-long focus on a particular country and promotes the nation's culture, politics, and history through lectures, forums, art exhibits, etc. Items found in these files include correspondences, articles, photographs, speaker information, publicity, etc. Folders in this section are organized in chronologically by year and then alphabetically by topic.

Series X. LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE, 1981-1986.

Created in March 2006, this series houses most of the information regarding the Leadership Conference which is sponsored by the Center for the Study of the Presidency. Each year this meeting brought together leaders from around the country for three days of skills building lectures and discussion groups that explored many different aspects of leaderships. In 1985, Grand Rapids hosted this event. This collection has information regarding the conferences in 1983, 1984, and 1985. Documents range from brochures and outlines to newspaper clippings and correspondences. Items in this folder are organized by year and then alphabetically.
