Finding Aid for the

Kent County Health Department Records

Collection # 034

September 2009 version

Abstract

The Kent County Health Department Records include documents of the work of this Western Michigan county, from about 1900 to 1976, through its working files, images and publications. Excerpts from the Official Minutes of Council Meetings, 1857-1885 concerning health, and Let in the Sunlight : Michigan's Heritage of Health from 1873 to the present / by John R. Cook, provide some insights into later 19th century health issues. Included are correspondence, history notes, manuals, minutes, news releases, newspaper clippings, notes, photographs, and scrapbooks, documenting and illustrating the history, operations, and organization of Kent County Health Department. Books, booklets, bulletins, charts, government documents, magazine articles, newsletters, newspaper clippings, notes, subject notes, and scrapbooks provide information on subjects or issues that pertain to the public health environment, social work, and welfare. Some of the subjects include: alcoholism, civil defense, children's health, high risk pregnancies, birth defects, cancer, divorce, civil rights, drug addiction, epilepsy, home safety, muscular dystrophy, poverty, polio, rubella, scabies, swine flu, syphilis, and tuberculosis. Also included are bibliographies, publication lists, and catalogs documenting other sources available at that time in the health field, welfare, social work, and behavioral sciences. At least one photo includes Dr. Grace Eldering & Loney Gordon, who along with Dr. Pearl Kendrick and associated others are credited with the development of the Whooping Cough vaccine.

However, there is no county archives which maintains files such as those found here, and in many cases, the records for some department or project may be discarded or lost. In the absence of a county wide historical archives, those collections which have local historical information of service to area citizens have been maintained primarily by either the Grand Rapids Public Library or City of Graphics Rapids Archives and Records Center. Other area archives may also have acquired some Kent collections, as well.

Processing note:

Generally, the collection was in good condition. The papers and photographs were placed in record center boxes. The papers and photographs are arranged alphabetically and chronologically within their series. The procedures used in preserving the collection consisted of the following: removing dirt and dust from papers with document pad, removal of staples and paper clips, photocopying newspaper clippings on acid free paper, and placing the papers and photographs into acid free folders and boxes.

Photo processing, 10/2003 and 2/2006.

No archival location information has yet to be recorded on the reverse of many of the images. It is possible that items have been misplaced during use over the years, and thus may be in a different folder or even been separated to a different collection than originally received. For example, some items with hand written dates on the reverse have been processed under those dates. Others are now found under broad headings, such as "Administration". This may have been intentional, or a later misplacement. Some images visually appear to belong in other folders with like images. Ultimately, most dates should be considered circa dates, unless further research provides firm information.

History

The Kent County Health Department is under the supervision of the Kent County Board of Commissioners which establishes county policy, provides financial support, and appoints a Board of Health. The Board of Health appoints the Public Health Director, establishes department policy, approves programs, and adopts a budget. The Public Health Director is charged with the study and evaluation of public health problems and the implementation of programs for all the people within the resources allotted. The director cooperates with all other social, health, citizen, and government groups to develop community health problems. Also the director evaluates health needs periodically and revises old or creates new programs and services to meet these needs.

The Deputy director for Medical Services and the Assistant Director for Administration assists the Director in implementing a comprehensive public health program for Kent County.

The Kent County Health Department is made up of seven service divisions, each with its own director, and professional, technical and clerical support staff. Included are: Adult Health and Disease Control Division, Community Centers Division, Environment Health Division, General Services Division, Maternal, Child and School Health Division, Public Health Nursing Division, Substance Abuse Coordination Division. Although the divisions are organized along functional lines, they operate cooperatively in the implementation of the total public health program.

The beginnings of an organized health program are somewhat obscure, but apparently city fathers worried about the health of the community as early as 1857. There was first a Health Committee of Council members and then in 1871, a Board of Health. In 1887 this board was organized to consist of four council members with the mayor and president of the council ex officio, and a health officer was appointed. According to the Health Department, this date marks the beginning of an actual public health program. The first health officer was Dr. Hugo L. Pinski; he was followed in 1888 by Dr. Edward Watson and in 1889 by Dr. Henry Saunders. Other early officers were Drs. Robert Luton, William Delano, and T.M. Koon, and there are references to other doctors (Locher, Barth, Griswold) serving on the Board of Health. In 1910 Dr. C.C. Slemons became Health Officer and in 1917, at the same time the city government was reorganized, this was made a full-time job. Dr. W.B. Prothro succeeded Dr. Slemons and presided over the 1954 merger of the city and county health departments into the present organization. After Dr. Prothro's retirement in 1976, Dr. Douglas A. Mack was appointed Director of Public Health.

Overall, these notes are valuable in describing Kent County Health Department service divisions, and programs.

Series XIX. Pamphlets contain information regarding government, health, welfare, recreation and hospital services, social development, and civil defense disaster programs. Moreover, there is material pertaining to drugs, sewage, and tuberculosis. The Michigan Health pamphlets provide valuable historical information on the Michigan Health Department. Some of the other valuable pamphlets include: Assembling Equipment In The Packaged Disaster Hospital, FDA Life protection series on drugs; Hospital Dietary Services , Into the Future ... Healthfully, Johnny Health is a Part of Learning Too! 10 concepts for a Total Health Program, Assistance under the Social Security Act, and "Social Development: Key to the Great Society."

Series Descriptions

Series XX. Papers contain valuable information about teenage unmarried mothers, unwed black and white women of the lower socioeconomic class, social and educational needs of poor children, mental hygiene, and poverty. Most valuable papers include: "Comparative Study of Pregnant Lower Class Negro and White Women's Attitude toward Illegitimacy," "Meeting the Social and Educational Needs of Poor Children." "Mental Hygiene in the Community," and "The Other America: Poverty in the United States."

Series XXI. Plays describe or portray home safety. "Your Bonnet With All The Hazards On It" emphasizes home safety in a unique way by the use of millinery. The play consist of ladies or models wearing stylish, wearable hats which are trimmed with various hazards to safety encountered in the home. "A Day In The Home" describes the types of accidents which may occur in the home.

Series XXII. Policies regarding birth, vaccines, and death are included. In addition, there are Kent County Health Department division policies.

Series XXIII. Reports. Included are Annual, monthly, and weekly reports from various agencies, divisions, projects and programs, covering a time span from 1911 to 1976. There are reports from the health and medical director's offices. In addition, there are a few evaluation reports. A majority of the reports are for the Grand Rapids - Kent County Health Department. Other important reports document the following: Alcoholism, Rehabilitation Program, Community Health Service, Kent County Public Health Biennial Program Plan (1969-1972), Environmental Health Division (1959-1964), Maternal and Child Health Division (1966-1968), Social Service (1966-1967), Sheldon Complex (1966-1967), Teenage Health Program (1966-1967), Nursing Program, Tops for Teens Club (1966-1969), Unwed Mothers Group, V.I.P. Some of the subjects include: alcoholism, arthritis, birth defects, cancer, child abuse, tuberculosis, child development, civil defense, drug addiction, contagious diseases, crippled adults and children, day care, delinquency, divorce, environmental health, epidemiology, heart disease, physically handicapped, poison prevention, poverty, rubella, scabies, still births, swine flu, and welfare.

Series Descriptions

Series XXVI. Worksheets provide problems and issues that a social worker may observe in their work.

Series XXVII. Photographs and Glass Lantern Plates. One of the largest series in the collection, these images include those documenting staff and events, as well as many images which have been used in the publications elsewhere in the collection. They illustrate various programs and projects of Kent County Health Department. There are numerous photographs regarding the administration. In addition to the photographs, there are several glass lantern plates illustrating some diseases, and showing the nursing staff during the early years of the Health Department. The majority of the plates, however, show or portray children during their medical checkups. Certain uses of some images may be restricted due to privacy concerns.

Note: Some photos may still exist in scattered folders within the collection. When found, these are being moved to box 034-033.5, but document for the folder where found, which may indicate a particular use.

It appears that many of the photos were used in publications or image presentations from the department. A desired mini-project for a volunteer or researcher is to match the images in the collection to those publications where used, and make a record of that match, for the possible better identification of the image and context.

Series XXVIII. Scrapbooks containing newspaper clippings document former programs, projects, and health issues of the Kent County Health Department. They describe the various diseases that affected the public health environment, and how the Health Department combated them.

Series XXIX. Graphics
