Abstract	Central High School, also known in the early years as Grand Rapids High School, was opened in 1859 and remained the only high school building in Grand Rapids, Michigan until Union High School was built in 1897. In 1979 a history class at Central High School, with guidance from history teacher Ed Merizon, took on the task of documenting Central High School's history and their work produced this collection. The collection includes a comprehensive set of the Helios, the school newspaper turned yearbook, as well as a number of photographs of such things as sports teams, students, and faculty members. There is also alumni information, newspaper clippings of sporting events and programs for commencement and spring musicals. There are also a number of scrapbooks that contain information from the late 1880s through the early 1920s. The collection spans 1870-1988 with a bulk of information detailing the years 1979-1980.

Biographical/Historical note

Central High School (also known as Grand Rapids High School) was opened in 1859 and remained the only high school in Grand Rapids until Union High School was built in 1897. The original structure was known as the old stone schoolhouse and the limestone for this building was extracted from the Grand River bed. The second building was constructed in 1867, was heated by steam and used gas lighting. The third building was erected in 1893. The high school used both the second and third buildings to house its growing student body through 1910. From 1911, the high school was housed in its current building. Grand Rapids Junior College, founded in 1914, was initially also housed in the current building.

Central High School graduated its first class in 1862. This class consisted of 13 girls, since the boys had all left for military service in the Civil War. When Union High School opened in 1897, students attended Union until tenth grade and then attended Central High to complete their studies and graduate. This went on until Union graduated its first class in 1912.

In 1979 a history class at Central High School took on the task, with the guidance from history teacher Ed Merizon, of documenting Central High School's history and their work produced this collection. Due to their efforts, there is a nearly comprehensive collection of the Helios newspapers, as well as a number of photographs, alumni information, newspaper clippings and programs for various events. There are also a number of scrapbooks that contain information from the late 1800s through the early 1920s. This different group of information will be explained and described in the scope and content section.

Scope and Contents note

The Central High School collection contains a number of different series. There are photographs, newspaper clippings, examples of school work, school newspapers, alumni notes and scrapbooks. The school newspapers chronicle a large time span, while many of the other things concentrate on either the late 1800s to early 1920s, or the mid to late 1970s and beyond. Because of the class project there is a bulk of information involving 1979.

The collection includes a comprehensive set of the Helios, the school newspaper turned yearbook, as well as a number of photographs of such things as sports teams, students and faculty members. There is also alumni information, newspaper clippings of sporting events and programs for commencement and spring musicals. There are also a number of scrapbooks that contain information from the late 1880s through the early 1920s.

Some small accessions of related materials have been attached to this collection since it was originally received, including reunion materials for the Classes of 1926, 1986, 1991 and 1993 and a 1913 publication by Grace F. Ellis. However, since the formation of the generic GRPL High Schools collection,

#316, other Central High and Grand Rapids High School materials, not originally received with this collection, can be found there.

Series VII. Photographs, 1890-1979, n.d.

Scope and Contents note

The photo series includes a number of different images. For the most part, the photos are of the early 1900s and a few are from the late 1890s. The photographs are divided into a number of categories. The sports photos include 1895 track and football teams and the 1890 baseball team. There are photos of the school buildings and classrooms. There are a number of photos of the various trophies and memorials including the Julius Houseman Field memorial rock. There are photographs of some reunions, the school's 100th Anniversary, school play casts, the 1907 faculty (names included), and the school's House of Representatives that Jesse Davis started. Photographs of Betty Ford's visit are also available as well as the history class of 1979. There are a number of miscellaneous photos as well as some slides and some negatives.

Series X. School Publications, 1892-1988.*Scope and Contents note

This is the largest series in the collection. There are three different newspapers chronicled: LaPlume, Every Other Week, and the Helios which is also named the Ram's Review and Rampages. LaPlume was in circulation for only a few years, 1900-1907. Every Other Week was in use for an even shorter time, 1899-1900. The Helios however spans 1893-1988 in this collection. The Helios was a sometimes monthly literary publication (publication frequencies vary by year), that evolved into the school yearbook. The newspapers are arranged chronologically.
