Abstract:	Gerald Elliott (1907-1994) was an editorial writer for the Grand Rapids Press in Grand Rapids, Michigan. This collection consists primarily of published work by Michigan associated authors. Also included are items published in Michigan, those having information about Michigan or some other Michigan association. All items in the collection are believed to have been collected by Elliott, or received by him as part of the book review process, for reviews he primarily prepared for the Grand Rapids Press. Also included is correspondence between Elliott and authors, as well as some ephemera, photographs and biographical information.

Scope and Contents

Book jackets have been removed and can be found in the Archives and other ephemera, such as correspondence or clippings found in the books, are housed separately in acid free folders, but cross-referenced to the item where found. Many of the items in the Michigan Authors Collection duplicate those found elsewhere in the book and archival collection, but come together here as Elliott's particular collection. Arrangement is alphabetical by author.

Processing Information

Note: Items with regular book binding were removed from the archival order established for these holdings and cataloged according to traditional library book cataloging. These items also have markings in ink and glue which are not used as part of regular archival procedures, since they irreversibly mark the items. They are currently housed by call number in a separate location from the remainder of the collection. They can be located by searching the regular library catalog, though there is no series title for the archival collection title. Books from the collection are arranged by call number, beginning with Archives, followed by a number ranging from 001.2-917.94. A list of these titles, arranged by call number, can be found in Box 1.

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Gerald Elliott and Elliott family, accession numbers 1991.027, 1991.028.

Processing note

Original Note, 2003

The bulk of this collection is books collected by Gerald Elliott, but more often reviewed by him during the course of his work for the Grand Rapids Press. Many are by Michigan authors.

Two GRPL archivists and the City Historian set these books aside to be treated as archival holdings, in order to provide another layer of physical protection, from the physical markings and use of regular library materials, and to keep the collection together with the other archival holdings from Elliott. Library call numbers are not used for archival shelving, and the materials were expected to be housed in archival folders and boxes, primarily organized by author.

For these books, this finding aid was arranged by broad publication type, and then usually alphabetical by the authors last name. It is believed that there is a fairly complete and accurate inventory of those titles, included in this finding aid.

As the initial work on the finding aid was being completed, Library Administration determined that most of the book materials would instead be treated as regular books, processed in the Library's online catalog, and marked and shelved by call number. At this date, they are housed in a closed stack area (Northeast Room), in Grand Rapids History & Special Collections.

Materials accompanying the books, such as correspondence, ephemera, and books jackets, as well as pamphlet materials are still treated as archival materials.

In Nov. 2004, the remaining in-process ephemera materials in the staff workroom were gathered and moved to the archival stacks, since the volunteer processor was removed from the project, and the materials taken for book cataloging. Originally, there were approx. 4 cubic boxes of pamphlet-type materials thought too flimsy to sit on the regular shelves, which expand when processed. There are currently nine archival boxes in the Archives defined for Coll. 304.

There are also more unprocessed manuscript materials from the Elliott family unprocessed in the Archives.

Where no location information is given in this finding aid, it may be presumed that the item is cataloged on the online catalog and housed in the Northeast Room. In fact, however, some of the items may be housed in the 304 boxes. Or, some items in the finding aid may have been displaced during the cataloging process, or may still be in the library processing backlog. That is, items from this collection were not to be routed to the general collection, but in fact be in the general collections, or may now have been discarded from the Library's collections.

Much of this collection is still in process, and there may be many inaccuracies in the finding, due to the displacement of the book materials, and consequent reorganization.

Updated Note, September 2019

The books from this collection continue to be housed in the Northeast Room (Closed Stacks) and accompanying materials are housed in the climate controlled Archive (Closed Stacks). A list of the titles arranged by call number can be found housed in Box 1. Alternatively, patrons may use the shelf-browse function to see these titles in the online catalog.

Items with the location listed as unknown are either titles in the catalog or partially processed items stored in the Archive. Using the Box Contents list may prove useful for those looking for non-book items listed in the collection.

Collection Inventory

Box Contents List

Scope and Contents

Items housed in the collection's boxes (1-15) are primarily correspondence between Elliot and others (Boxes 2 & 3), or ephemera that includes, but is not limited to, dust jackets and items found by the original archivist while processing the collection. Also included are small-format items, periodicals, newsletters, etc.

Processing Information:

Processing Information

The Gerald Eliot Collection consists mainly of books, which are all searchable in the library's catalog, are arranged by call number, and are housed in closed stacks in the North East Room. Items contained in the boxes are partially processed. Item level descriptions were begun in the past by a former archivist and have since been abandoned. A container list has been included here with the box labels as a secondary method for navigating the collection.

Envelops have been retained where found. If the item was found in a book, a reference is made to the book title. Other correspondence may be associated with a book found in this collection, although matching has not yet been done. However, much of this correspondence may be related to Elliott's review of non-Michigan authors, and as such, this correspondence may be moved to another collection, if this collection continues to be defined only a Michigan associated items. Also some publications, manuscripts and photos mixed in with these items, that need to be physically housed and listed separately in other sections, if retained in this collection.
